Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over AAPA for the reasons set forth in paper no. 6.

Applicant argues that there is no motivation to combine the teachings of the prior art in the manner suggested by the examiner. He states that while it may seem simple to switch which parts are replaced, mere simplicity of a proposed combination does not provide the motivation to combine the teachings. However, the examiner disagrees. The only real difference in AAPA and the invention is having the stub on the replacement band. AAPA teaches a stub on a reused band and a new band which attaches to a new vane with a stub. Since it is known to make the attachment by using either the stub on the vane or the band, this is the motivation to provide the stub on the replacement band. The benefit to making the combination is in that if the parts that need to be replaced are replaced and those that are still OK are salvaged, which is an economic savings. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to salvage the maximum parts possible and replace the rest for the purpose of economic savings, in view of the teachings of AAPA.
